

OLNEY ARNOLD DIES; HIS TALK AS CONSUL HAD BEEN PROTESTED

U. S. Official at Cairo Was Accused of Unneutral Utterances and Inquiry Made.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Olney Arnold, American Diplomatic Agent and Consul General at Cairo, Egypt, died yesterday in a hospital at London, Portugal. Advice to the State Department from the American Consul there told of his death, but did not state the cause.

Mr. Arnold was granted leave of absence recently by the State Department and was on his way to the United States. His home was in Providence, R. I. He had been in the government service since Sept., 1915. Before his appointment he had been a member of the Rhode Island Legislature and in 1908-9 was Democratic candidate for Governor of Rhode Island. He was fifty-four years old.

At the time of Mr. Arnold's departure from Cairo his conduct was under investigation on charges made by American residents at Cairo, which included unneutral utterances. It was reported then that he was ill-health bordering on a state of nervous breakdown.

ORPET PASSES BIRTHDAY IN JAIL; CASE UP TO-DATE

Grand Jury Will Hear Story of the Alleged Murder of Miss Lambert.

CHICAGO, March 6.—Will S. Orpet was twenty-one years old yesterday. He spent the day in the Lake County Jail at Waukegan, where he has been confined since his arrest, charged with the murder of Miss Marian Lambert with cyanide of potassium. Early in the morning Mrs. E. O. Orpet appeared at the jail with a birthday cake for her son.

We always remembered Will's birthday," she told Sheriff Griffin. "We used to have a cake and a little party for him on his birthday. He is a very nice boy, this year, but I have brought the cake."

Several of Orpet's classmates from the University of Wisconsin called at the jail during the day, but were not allowed to visit the prisoner. They left magazines, cigars, college banners and other birthday gifts.

On the day of Orpet's arrest, a large number of witnesses, including about a score of newspaper reporters, will tell what they know about the death of the seventeen-year-old Lake Forest schoolgirl. If Orpet is indicted, the state will ask that the trial start in one week. Orpet's attorneys, it is understood, will ask for a few weeks delay.

INSURANCE CHECKS STOLEN.

Paris Company Charges That Endorsements Were Forged.

That six checks made out to clients of the General Fire Insurance Company of Paris, France, were stolen and returned with forged endorsements to the office of the insurance company is indicated by a summons and complaint filed in the County Clerk's office to-day. The defendant named is the State Bank, which is said to have cashed the checks and passed them on to the plaintiffs' insureds. The checks were stolen and returned with forged endorsements.

The checks bore dates in a period between Aug. 7, 1914, and Feb. 9, 1915. Upon information and belief it is asserted that these checks were stolen and returned with forged endorsements.

Apache on Her Way to Port.

The agents of the Clyde liner Apache, which was disabled in a collision off the Virginia coast on Saturday, received a wireless to-day saying that the vessel was 147 miles south of Sandy Hook and would dock here at noon Tuesday. The Apache is being towed to port.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild, laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids.

It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a clogged liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, when you feel "drowsy" and "heavy," and you will find that the "drowsiness" and "heaviness" are gone. The tablets work on the liver and bowels, and they "perk up" the spirits.

MUST A WIFE OBEY?

Let the Woman Rule the Roost, She Always Does
Obey From a Man or a Shrewish Wife a Disgusting Word

Make the Home a Republic, Not a Tyranny

"Woman Can Be Tamed by Kindness," Is the Opinion of One of the Final Contributors to This Series of Letters, "and a Tame Wife Makes a Glorious Ruler"—Instinctive Gentleness and Consideration Need Not Disappear With Marriage.

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall.

"The woman is sure to rule the roost, and it is perfectly proper. For she can be tamed by kindness, and a tame woman makes a glorious ruler." So writes "J. E. B.," an ever so much more amiable and optimistic husband than the gentleman from whom we heard the other day, who thought the boycott the only fitting punishment for the disobedient wife. Each man—proudly, one sadly—admits that his theory is based on his personal domestic experience. Which case is the more typical?

From my own observation, it seems to me that in the vast majority of American homes the woman does "rule the roost." It is she who decides where the family shall live, what it shall eat, how the children shall be educated, what church they shall attend, the quantity and quality of the social life of the household. She kindly allows the man to earn the money which supplies the power for the domestic machinery, but she herself watches over every crank and cog of the machine. It may run smoothly, at that, since this arrangement seems to work the greatest comfort for the greatest number. And perhaps the meek American husband ought to be a vicarious sacrifice for the brutal tyrants of the past—and of the present—in many parts of the world.

But I don't see why a home has to be anybody's tyranny. Why can't it be a republic? To rule one's husband must, I think, be only less disconcerting and disagreeable to a woman with a fine sense of life's fitnesses than to be ruled by him.

The relation of two civilized persons who are really, deeply, vividly in love is that of Alphonse and Gaston, rather than that of master and slave. Each of two lovers is so afraid of hurting the other that each insists on stepping aside or yielding place. I know that that instinctive gentleness and consideration often disappear after marriage. But need they go? And wouldn't their retention solve the question of conjugal obedience?

A REASONABLE PHILOSOPHY GIVES A NEGATIVE ANSWER.

Here are the final views of Evening World readers on the question, "Must a Wife Obey?"

"Dear Madam: 'Must a wife obey?' I have an opinion, and so has every one, and not one of our ideas will serve to influence the newlyweds or the brides and bridegrooms to be, but there is ample food for thought in the question. It is reasonable philosophy to take the position that the wife should not obey and that the statement in the marriage vow is in nearly every case superfluous.

"I believe that the great majority of marriages are brought about by mutual love, and when the ceremony is performed the formula is not given a thought. 'I pronounce you man and wife' is all either of them hear, and it is all they want to hear. A marriage vow is like the scrap of paper.

"There is certain to be a boss in every household, as there is in every other organization. It may be the man, it may be the woman. The one having the greater ability, tact, discretion and diplomacy will lead and the other will follow.

"This is willing obedience, and I presume does not come under the range of your question; but in the rule nevertheless. Now the smallest fraction of humanity is left to be considered, in order to settle your question. A man-hating woman will not consent to be bossed by anybody, let alone one whom she considers a born savage (man). The woman who marries for convenience will carefully weigh every detail and take her man on conditions that must be thoroughly understood in advance. She is going to be the hen and her husband will be badly pecked. The woman who marries for money will put up with most anything so long as everything goes her way, but a little overdose of fault-finding or bossing sends her home to ma and dear old dad, who was always perfectly lovely.

"The woman who marries for social position will not stand being bossed in place of the consideration she expects to realize.

"It is not within the nature of woman or of any other female to be bossed. She is a born fighter. If she were not life would disappear from the face of the earth. She fights for her offspring; she fights for right and justice; she fights in her own way. It may be with tears, prayers and pleadings, but it is determined and effective.

"Must a wife obey? You can't 'must' a woman to do anything she doesn't want to do. Then why make her say she will before she can marry? She willingly obeys the man she loves, if he is careful to study her needs and secure his orders in the form of requests. It is possible for a man to govern a woman, but it requires a bigger man with a finer sense of diplomacy than would be required for a Minister to a foreign nation.

"Punish contrariness in human nature shows only when you attempt to drive. In this the matter of sex does not count. A woman is not contrary simply for the sake of contention, but will follow if led aright and fight if the reverse. Man can be led to his destruction. A woman must hear the double cross. She must fight her way to safety and lead us men to safety.

"You cannot make a woman obey anything but the instincts of her own heart and soul, and it is to this divine instinct that all mankind owes its life.

"Must a wife obey? Not in a million years if she doesn't want to. How do I know? I had one and my father had one. He made the discovery before I did.

"We decided that it doesn't matter what a woman says—she's sure to rule the roost, and it is perfectly proper. There is no way on earth to from a bride-to-be's standpoint.

"I think that when a girl marries she should, without any hesitation, make up her mind that she is going to do just as her husband says. Furthermore I think that if a girl is really in love with a man, he for her husband or fiancé, she enjoys doing the things he tells her to do.

"I have been going with my fiancé a little over one year and I can remember times when he told me to do things and just to be obstinate I would say no. But it would hardly be a minute after when I would be doing as he said I should do, because I enjoyed obeying him, and he was only my sweetest.

"I not only think that a wife should enjoy obeying her husband, but I also think that the husband should be lord and master of his own household.

"BROOKLYN."

THE VOW AT THE ALTAR CUTS NO FIGURE.

"Dear Madam: The marriage vow cuts no figure, whether the word obey is used or not. The one who is most self-willed, who 'holds on' the longest will be obeyed. The other will yield, for peace.

In other words, the strongest character will be leader and will exact compliance—obedience.

"I am past sixty years old, have been twice married. I have two sons and a daughter married. The marriage service is a legal arrangement of words which must be subscribed to, and means as little, beyond the necessity of using it, as an oath does in court. Did you ever know any one to live fully up to a marriage vow?"

"Did you ever know any one to who does not shade the truth on the witness stand?"

"EXPERIENCED ONLOOKER."

LONG ISLAND TRAINS TIED UP

Patrick Downs, motorman of a Long Island train entering the Flatbush station, threw on his emergency brake at Grand Avenue early today to avoid passing a "ston" signal, which flashed just as he approached it. The sudden stop stripped the gear of the motor of his car and the gear casing was ripped off and thrown to the tracks, causing a short circuit.

Fifteen following trains were delayed for thirty-five minutes until the tracks could be cleared and connections repaired.

TELLS HOW MEXICANS WIPE OUT A FAMILY

Passenger Knows of Two Outrages and Death of Soldier

Two recent instances of Mexican attacks on Americans were cited to-day by Charles E. Brewster of Washington, D. C., as evidence of the perilous condition still prevailing across the Rio Grande. Mr. Brewster returned this morning on the S. S. Esperanza after spending four months in Mexico, gathering phoasants, wild turkeys, songsters and other birds for the Pennsylvania preserves.

"About three weeks ago," said Mr. Brewster, "a Mexican officer and two soldiers went to the home of an American negro who lived with his wife and daughter about eighteen miles from Tampico. They assaulted both the women and then butchered all three.

"From there they went to the nearby home of William Ward, a young Texan. They ordered him and his bride to come out and when Ward refused they crept under the house and began shooting up through the floor. Ward put his wife on top of some furniture and then slipped out of a rear window with his repeating rifle. He killed two of the Mexicans on the spot and the other was found dead of his wounds the next day. Ward and his wife escaped to Tampico, where the American Consul put them on an oil ship for Galveston."

Among other passengers on the Esperanza was Don Francisco Vela, who, though but twenty-three, is a lieutenant colonel in Carranza's cavalry. He is accompanied by his mother, Dominga Y. D. Vela, a woman of the old Castilian type. Vela is here to enter Harvard Medical School.

DROP THREE BATTLESHIPS.

PHILADELPHIA, March 6.—The battleships Alabama, Ohio and Georgia are to be stricken from the navy roster as real fighting units and probably will end their days as training ships for the naval reserve. This was the assertion made to-day by several officers of the Philadelphia Navy Yard. One of the officers asserted that the battleships, "despite their excellent condition," are obsolete and retard the progress and efficiency of first line ships.

The Alabama, flagship of the reserve fleet, and the Ohio are at the Philadelphia Navy Yard. The Georgia is now on her way to the local yard to join the reserve fleet. The Alabama was laid down twenty years ago and is a 12,000-ton ship. The Ohio and Georgia, built a few years later, are virtually the same size and carry similar armaments.

SUFFERS 20 YEARS, THEN KILLS HIMSELF

Unable to Sleep, Felix W. Davidson, Wealthy Manufacturer, Ends Life With Revolver.

After suffering from insomnia for twenty days, Felix W. Davidson killed himself to-day at his home, No. 606 West One Hundred and Sixteenth Street. While his wife, Charlotte, was preparing their twelve-year-old son, Arthur, for school Mr. Davidson, who had spent a sleepless night, shot himself through the head with a revolver and died instantly.

Mr. Davidson was forty years old, a retired ransom manufacturer. His relatives say he broke down his nervous system by hard work when he was a youth, but he remained in business until about four years ago, when he retired with a fortune.

All treatments for the relief of his illness, which became more acute with the passage of years, failed. Recently he had not been able to sleep at all. For years he had kept a revolver under his pillow for protection, he said, against burglars. It was this revolver that he used to-day.
